Pittsburgh Gazette

FRIDAY MORNING, FEB. 25, 1820.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Harrisburgh, to his friend in this city, dated Feb 17.

"At this particular moment I have very little to write that can interest you. But in a few days we will act on the appropriations for internal improvements, I am sanguine that the result will give us something considerable for the Ohio river, and liberal assistance to the road from this place to Pittsburgh. Every section of this road is involved deeply in debt—some of them in almost inextricable embarrassments. Without immediate relief, I am afraid some of the companies will be dissolved, and many enterprising citizens utterly ruined. It therefore becomes of the first importance to us, to get an additional subscription of stock on the part of the commonwealth. If it is possible, without endangering this first object, it would be extremely desirable to have a reduction of the toll, at least on broad wheeled waggons.—But this is a subject which must be treated with great delicacy, as it may excite the jealousy of others. One thing is certain we will all do what we think is for the best. If we do not atchieve what we desire, we must accept of what we can obtain.

"I think it almost certain that the law for the additional auctioneer will pass—and then for the scramble.

"The committee to whom was referred the charges against the governor, have made a masterly report, and decidedly in his favor. In a few days it will be printed; I hope every citizen of every party will read it attentively.

"We are a good deal agitated here about a loan office. At first I dreaded the idea, because I feared that by encouraging such a project, our plan of internal improvements might be jeopardised. If this danger can be obviated, I am inclined to think a loan office upon proper principles would be exceedingly beneficial."

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

REPORT

Of the Committee, appointed by the House of Representatives to enquire into the conduct of the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Randall made the following report:

The committee of the House of Representatives to whom, on the 8th day of December 1819, was referred the petition from sundry citizens of this commonwealth, praying for an inquiry into the conduct of the Governor.

MADE REPORT:

That, deeply impressed with the importance of their prescribed duties, as well to the character of the state, and the purity of its institutions, as to the distinguished individual whose conduct was made the subject of their scrutiny, they have spared no time, nor labour, to accomplish a full and thorough investigation. One month of almost daily industry has been consumed; thirty witnesses have been fairly and patiently examined, and a considerable mass of documentary testimony minutely searched. Aiming at a complete developement and comprehension of all the transactions submitted to their consideration, they have, perhaps, appeared to the legislature, and to the people, to be dilatory and tedious: but, if the results of their proceedings be to communicate a clear and ample knowledge of all the facts, and to quiet the agitated feelings and opinions of their fellow citizens, your committee will never regret the course they have pursued.

The constitution of the commonwealth is known to confer upon the executive magistrate an extensive patronage. His powers, though great, and apparently enviable, are accompanied, in their exercise, by difficulties and vexations of equal magnitude.

While it is the duty of the governor, at once to exert his constitutional rights, and to sustain his constitutional responsibility, he necessarily incurs the risk of exciting, either for or against his administration of public affairs, all the passions to which human nature is subject. But, from the operation of these, the legislature and the people should protect their officer; nor should they too easily yield to the clamor of those, whose personal disappointments distort the exercise of powers conferred by law, into oppression or corruption.

The twentieth section of the bill of rights, it is true, guarantees to every citizen the right to petition or remonstrate, to those invested with the powers of government, for the redress of grievances, or other proper purposes; and this right your committee regard as too invaluable to be shackled or modified in any manner. But in a country like our own, where the great body of the people are not yet tainted with political vices, and where so much depends upon the public opinion, before the house of representatives would consent to exercise the high constitutional power of impeachment, they would require from the complainants some reasonable, some fair presumption of criminality.

The petition which induced the house of representatives to institute the inquiry is, avowedly, founded upon rumor or common report; a foundation no doubt, legitimate & sufficient. When, however, your committee commenced its duties, they requested, as a favor from the petitioners, and in order to facilitate their progress, that the charges against the governor should be shaped into a somewhat more specific and distinct form. This was done, though not to the extent which was desirable.

In conformity with the request of the petitioners, your committee, without perhaps, due reflection upon the consequences of so doing, allowed them to be represented by counsel. The records of similar cases however, in Pennsylvania, established on this point, a series of precedents which could not be disregarded; and which seemed also, to make it imperative upon your committee, to admit counsel on behalf of the chief magistrate. If there has been error in this particular, which cannot be readily conceded, it has sprung from too great a readiness in acquiescing in the early wishes of the petitioners themselves. Having received their professional representatives, we could not with any fairness, exclude those of the accused.

Aware, too, of the delicacy of the rights of the petitioners, your committee were disposed to grant every indulgence, and to admit every latitude of inquiry. Yet, in order to prevent an unnecessary consumption of time, certain rules in reference to the nature of evidence, and the order of its admission, were adopted. But, it was soon found to be as hard towards the petitions, if not impracticable, to adhere to them. They were consequently, sometimes overlooked; and, only tenaciously enforced, when palpably necessary and proper.

The admissibility of proffered evidence having been frequently the source of contention and difficulty, your committee desire, briefly & distinctly to state here, a condensed rule, which regulated their decisions upon that subject. They refused to travel into any examination of matters exclusively private, whether of the governor, or any other person, and would alone sanction such examintion when, in some manner, however distant, connected with the official conduct of the chief magistrate. With the personal arrangements of others, unknown to the governor, though intended by the individuals to faciltate their applications for office, your committee also refused to meddle. And they endeavoured, tho' ineffectually, to exclude what was obviously irrelevant to the real object of their investigation.

Upon an allegation that there were two or three witnesses beyond the jurisdiction of the state, the petitioners' counsel founded an application for the issuing of commissions to take their testimony. The extension of process beyond our limits and into another state where it cannot be enforced, is always to be avoided by judicial tribunals. In civil cases the parties interested must look to it themselves: but in a case like the present, the commission would be the act of the committee, to be transmitted by their officer, while a compliance with it, they could not pretend to exact. By such a step, they could not think of compromitting the dignity and authority of the house of representatives. It cannot be disguised, either, that the inquiry assumed, in some measure, the character of a criminal trial in its incipient state, and the constitutional provision upon the subject was thought to have some application. Nevertheless, your committee are of the opinion, from the evidence before them, that the witnesses beyond the jurisdiction of the state, the object of whose attendance was understood, could have shed no additional light upon the transactions they investigated; and they, therefore, cannot think any injustice has been done by their absence.

The wide range and minute detail, into which some of the witnesses, from the necessity of the case at first, and subsequently as tending to explanation, were allowed to proceed, have accumulated a mass of confused and intricate testimony. To arrange it; to winnow the chaff from the grain; and to apply to each charge exhibited by the petitioners, the substantial facts relating to it, is obviously a difficult and repulsive task. The real merits of the case are, however, susceptible of being embraced in a small compass; and it is the duty of your committee, at once to avoid burthening their report with redundant matter, and to communicate a succint and faithful view of each and every transaction. They undertake to do so, with the more confidence, because the evidence upon which their observations will be founded, being printed by order of the house of representatives, their accuracy may be easily tested, and their errors, if any, be immediately remedied.

The charges adduced, on behalf of the petitioners, by John Thompson, and Peter Christian, are eight in number, and are as follows:

I. That the said governor has on various occasions, corruptly exercised his official duties, for the purpose of advancing his own private interests, rather than promoting the general welfare.

II. That he has misused the patronage of his affice to obtain pecuniary advantages for himself, family and friends, from applicants for offices in the gift of the governor.

III. That he withheld the commissions for the office of auctioneers in the city of Philadelphia until he had ascertained, in answer to inquiries, made with his knowledge by the secretary of the commonwealth, which of all the applicants would consent to accept a commission, burthened with a large sinecure; and that having ascertained which of them would accept a commission, so burthened, the governor immediately caused notices to be sent, and soon after the commissions to issue; one of these notices and commissions being in favour of said applicant.

IV. That the governor has abused and misused his official patronage, by subjecting himself to personal obligations to various officers of his own appointment, by borowing money, by endorsements & acceptances to a very large amount, for his own use and that of his family; and that thus made subject to them, he could not feel freedom, nor, in the words of the constitution of Pennsylvania, has he taken 'care that the laws be faithfully executed.'

V. That the governor made an engagement with an auctioneer to take a certain person as clerk at a given salary, and subsequently relieved said auctioneer from taking said clerk, and other official embarrassments, in consequence of the said auctioneer and his family, having advanced and obtained loans of large sums of money, for the use of the said governor of the commonwealth.

VI. That the governor accepted the resignation of a person as an auctioneer, and forthwith appointed another person named by the individual who resigned, to the said office, he (the governor) knowing and being privy to the fact that the individual, so resigning, was to receive a certain sum or sums of money, at stated times, from the individual who was appointed in his place; the governor thus countenancing the bargain & sale of the office, and burthening the officer with the payment of a pension.

VII. That the governor withheld a commission until he had ascertained whether the applicant could produce a certain religious certificate, contrary to and in violation of the rights of conscience and of the constitution of Pennsylvania, which declares that 'no person who acknowledges the being of a God, and a future state of rewards and punishments, shall, on account of his religious sentiments, be disqualified to hold any office or place of trust or profit under this commonwealth.'

VIII. That the governor corruptly issued a commission, on the express condition that the person therein named, should, from time to time, pay over a certain portion of the fees to another person to whom the governor was under pecuniary obligations.

In addition to these enumerated ones, the counsel for the petitioners introduced incidentally, in the course of the investigation, another charge, which may be stated in substance, to be—"That the governor of this commonwealth, during the session of the legislature of 1817-18, did interfere with the proceedings of a committee appointed by the house of representatives to enquire into his official conduct, while treasurer of the state."

All the above charges are susceptible of being considered in the following order: The first, second and fourth charges may be taken in one view:—The fifth and eighth charges, applying in some measure to the same persons, might be advantageously blended together, but for fear of hazarding perspicuity, your committee will consider them, and the remaining charges, separately and distinctly.

1st CHARGE.

"That the said governor has, on various occasions, exercised his official duties, for the purpose of advancing his own private interests, rather than promoting the general welfare."

2d CHARGE.

"That he has misused the patronage of his office to obtain pecuniary advantages for himself, family and friends, from applicants for offices, in the gift of the governor."

4th CHARGE.

"That the governor has abused and misused his official patronage, by subjecting himself to personal obligations to various officers of his own appointment, by borrowing money, by indorsements & acceptances to a very large amount, for his own use, and that of his family; and that thus made subject to them, he could not feel freedom, nor, in the words of the constitution of Pennsylvania, has he taken "care that the laws be faithfully executed."

It is apparent, that the two first charges are far too general and indefinite for proof or refutation. They are broad and sweeping accusations, against which no public officer can fairly be called upon to defend himself. If indeed, the subsequent and more specific allegations were correct, then might they all be ranked under the one or the other of these; but should the particular instances in which the executive magistrate is stated "to have corruptly exercised his official duties, for the purpose of advancing his own private interest;" or to have "misused the patronage of his office to obtain pecuniary advantage for himself, family and friends," be unfounded, it will necessarily follow, that these two charges are wholly unsupported. Our attention then, is drawn, without further obstacle, to the fourth charge, as above stated.

PUBLIC FINANCES.

Mr. Hill from the committee of ways and means, made a report describing the fiscal condition of the state government, and recommending measures for its improvement, and for an increase of the revenue of the commonwealth. From this report, it appears that the amount of the public stock, credits, demands and debts due the state, are as follows.

Lands, the property of the state, estimated at	$20,000
Principal, interest and fees due on lands sold	3,000,000
Stock in the Pennsylvania Bank	1,5000,000
Stock in the Philadelphia Bank	528,000
Stock in the Farmers and Mechanics Bank	85,400
Stock in turnpike roads	893,651
Stock in bridges	330,000
Stock in navigation companies	51,800
Loans to individuals, due the state	7,400
Debts due on accounts settled in the auditor's office	182,779
Debts due under the loan office of 1773 and 1785	35,700
Due from Peter Baynton	37,400
Due from John Nicholson's estate about	70,000
Total	$6,736,330

The committee consider that further legislative provisions will be necessary to coerce the payment of the sums due for lands and under the loan office laws. All the other debts due the state are sufficiently secured under existing laws, except that due from Nicholson's estate. They think that the debt due for lands sold under the proprietary government, amounting to 1,500,000 dollars, may be made to produce an annual revenue for ten years of 150,000

Under the loan office laws	7,140
Additional auction duty of half per cent	25,000
Licenses to venders of imported goods	25,000
A tax on pleasurable carriages	5,000
Tax on unseated lands of 1 ct. per acre	20,000
Excess of ordinary receipts over public expenses	63,500
Total	$295,640

This sum of 295,640 dollars, which the committee think will be exceeded by the actual receipts from the sources stated, constitutes the excess of annual revenue over the annual expenses of the state government. In making this estimate, they leave out of view the monies due from Peter Baynton, from John Nicholson, from individuals on account of loans, and upon accounts settled in the auditor's office; and they also leave out of view what is due for lands sold since the proprietary government, amounting to about 1,500,000 dollars more for the collection of which the legislature may hereafter provide. If the legislature authorize the borrowing of one million of dollars for internal improvement, the above excess of 295,640 dollars per annum may, in the opinion of the committee, be safely calculated on for its redemption. If judiciously appropriated, the money will render existing turnpike, bridge and navigation stock, owned by the state, productive, and create new productive stock of the same description, the proceeds of which may be applied to the institution of free schools, and to the further improvement of the state. The committee conclude their report by earnestly pressing the adoption of the following resolutions.

That the committee of ways and means be directed to bring in bills to provide for the collection of the debts due under the loan office acts of 1773 and 1785.

To give the secretary of the land office, the auditor and surveyor general, power to contract with any persons who shall propose to discover any property belonging to the estate of John Nicholson.

To lay an additional tax of one half of one per cent on sales at auction.

To subject the venders of imported goods to the payment of licences.

To lay a tax on pleasurable carriages.

To lay an annual tax of not less than one cent per acre on unseated lands.

To direct the auditor general to pay all taxes and arrears of taxes due on lands of Peter Baynton, on which the commonwealth has a lieu.

And they recommend the passsage of the bill, which has already gone through senate, providing for the collection of the debts due for lands sold under the proprietary governments.

The acts of congress recently approved by the President are—1st an act altering the times of holding the District Court of the United States for Virginia, west of the Allegheny Mountain. 2d. An act making appropriations for the direction of public buildings. 3d. An act directing the register of the Treasury, under the superintendance of the secretary, to form statistical tables of the commerce and navigation of the U. S. distinguishing the flags, countries, &c. These acts were approved on the 10th inst.

Blanks Printed Here.

PITTSBURGH:

Friday, Feb. 25, 1820.

The Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette are under the painful necessity of informing their friends, that they are constrained by the circumstances of the times, to restore this paper to its ancient form as a weekly journal. It will in future be published every Thursday, at the reduced price of three dollars per annum, payable in advance; the Editors have it in contemplation to enlarge their paper to the imperial size; by this arrangement there will be but little curtailment even of the present amount of matter.

The Editors on this occasion cannot avoid declaring that they are forced into the measure of alteration principally from the want of punctuality on the part of their debtors; if their just dues had been paid with any thing like regularity, the semi weekly publication might have been continued without embarrassment, but the fact is, although the subscription list and advertising patronage of the Gazette appears most flattering and profitable on paper, yet it has been found impossible lately to procure funds for the actual expenditures. Since the establishment of the new series of the Gazette now about 21 months, the unpaid debt amounts to near four thousand dollars, more than two thousand of which is in Pittsburgh and its vicinity. With such an expose as this, the world could not expect the Editors to continue such a losing game as they have been playing. When their credits are so considerable, the natural consequence must be that they are much in debt, and as their creditors have become most painfully urgent, they will be obliged to have recourse to the last expedient that the man of delicacy resorts to, if this expose have not the effect of rousing the sense of justice in our debtors.—Those subscribers at a distance who are in arrears will be struck off the list, and their accounts placed in the hands of the proper authority for collection; it is hoped that those near home who are indebted to us, will not oblige us into a measure which however painful, has become the only mode of saving ourselves from pressure.

We daily hear apprehensions expressed in our public papers, of a dissolution of the union, resulting from the decided stand made on the floor of Congress, on the Missouri question. The example of the legislature of Virginia has been cited to prove that it is little short of downright madness, to persist in an attempt to enforce restrictions. So long as the sun wheels his diurnal splendor through the blue overarching firmament, so long will truth, honor & justice, maintain amongst mortals the pre-eminence of their heavenly birth. So long, did we say; we beg pardon for our narrow and short-sighted comprehension. These eternal principles constitute a part, and an essential part of the Deity himself, & they shall survive the dissolution of nature, the extinguishment of the sun, the death of this magnificent universe. These are no poetic visions; the attributes of the Deity partake, and must partake of his own immortality, and we can no more conceive of their dissolution than we can of the annihilation of God. This transitory sun, these temporary stars, this vapor denominated earth, may and will be dissolved by the breath of its Creator, but truth, faith and justice only await that hour to soar to their native heavens, guided by the flames of the world in conflagration. Agitated by such ideas, we refuse to listen for a moment to the miserable argument devised from the fear of what may result from rendering homage to justice. There is no fear to be put in competition of offending the Deity. The miserable, mean, short sighted policy, which through the dread of offending man, sets Heaven itself at defiance, belongs not to our creed. Is this too strong a statement of this question? Read over the drawling and interminable debates in Congress on the Missouri question, which to their disgrace, still occupy their time; read, and it will be found that the foes of restriction still acknowledge slavery as a curse, and contend in the same breath, for the still further extension of this curse in the western wilds. We are told that it is unconstitutional, that it is criminal to be just. Before Congress submit to language of this kind; before they declare by a solemn legislative resolution, that they dare not do their duty, we hope they will embrace the pillars of the constitution, and if they must fall, bury themselves in the ruins of the republic—Talk of a dissolution of the union; the union is dissolved the very moment, that congress neglect to do their duty.

The union is in danger of being dissolved, whenever the hall of Congress is converted into an academy for declamation; when transitory admiration of petty, subordinate, grovelling ambition is sought, instead of the smiles from the venerable visage of our county.—When government hear only to neglect the complaints of a suffering and ruined people, there are symptoms of dissolution, not to be misunderstood or averted. Let Congress perform a moral duty, and brave the result; there is nothing to fear but from their own timidity. Such are our sentiments, and we know that millions of free, high-minded and independent Americans are ready to respond AMEN.

'TROUBLE IN THE WIGWAM.'

Extract of a letter dated,

Columbus, Feb. 11, 1820.

'You may recollect that, upon some suspicion having gotten afloat, relating to the situation of the treasury, a committee was appointed to count the cash, and compare the same with the auditor's books. From the report of this committee, it appears that there is a deficit in the treasury, of five thousand four hundred & ninety four dols. & twenty cents! and it appears also, that the treasurer has undertaken to loan the sum of $2117, 85½ cents—making altogether $7612, 05½. What course will be pursued against the treasurer, I cannot as yet say—but it is probable that, if he does not previously resign, an impeachment will be instituted. I cannot omit remarking, that a paper in this place called the Columbus Gazette, in publishing this document, has omitted to publish the amount of the deficit. And this paper is edited by the state printer too! Comment is needless

'Our friend Alexander Patterson, is entirely exonerated from blame, as to the disposition of his funds. Not so of some of the other non-resident collectors—Neither Hildreth nor Perry brought with them a dollar in specie or in the paper of specie paying banks And the treasurer was simple enough to take such trash from them, as Cincinnati, Dayton, Lebanon, and Zanesville paper, in the place of money. Is such a man fitting to hold the purse strings of the state?

Western Herald.

A squall of wind passed over this town on Wednesday last, and unroofed several brick houses, and blew down one or two others. The paper mill was seriously injured—but, from the well known enterprize of its proprietor, we feel assured that the stoppage of the mill will be but temporary. Several trees were blown down, on the Virginia side of the river, by one of which Mr. John Trump, of this town, was killed. His remains were interred on the day following.

The Steam Boat Bezaleel Wells, started on Thursday afternoon last, for Pittsburgh. This is the first steam boat built in Steubenville, and is named very appropriately, after the founder of the town. She is well calculated for the trade between Pittsburgh and Louisville, her draft of water being very trifling, when compared with her tonnage. She has excellent accommodations for passengers. May success attend her.—ib.

LONG SPEECHES.

I can't help thinking that the fashion our orators have fallen into, of making long speeches, is a very bad one; and ought to be censured by the press until it is corrected. At the present day, no gentlemen in Congress is thought to be among the number ones, who does not occupy the floor, at least one day, upon the most common topic; and on a great question, a part of two days must be taken up

Thus we have from the National Intelligencer, paragraphs like the following.

'Tuesday the 3d—Mr. T. commenced an argument on the Missouri Bill, & having spoken three hours, gave way for a motion that the committee rise.

'Wednesday the 4th.—Mr T. resumed his argument on the Missouri bill, and occupied the floor for two hours.'

With great deference to their honours this is worse than nonsense. It is a disgraceful waste of time—too precious to be thus squandered.

It is a matter of astonishment how gentlemen of ordinary sensibility can muster nerve enough to speak such a length of time, when no living mortal listens to them. The fact is notorious that two thirds of the members abandon the floor when such long speeches are delivering, and that the other third, instead of paying the least attention, are engaged in reading newspapers, or writing letters. As to the Speaker or Chairman, who is compelled to seem to listen—if he can sleep with his eyes open—and like baron Trenk, speak while sleeping as to cry 'order,' every half hour—he is fortunately gifted.

It is also a fact too important to be disregarded, that one of those long speeches cost the country more than five thousand dollars.

Certainly the most perfect freedom of debate ought to be indulged. No rule could be beneficially made even to regulate it, lest so sacred a right should be impaired. But the corrective must be found in public taste—the fashion must be made to change. The press ought to become more clamorous against those who would found their claim to distinction upon the length of their speeches instead of the facts and arguments they contain.

The two hours—or even in one and a half—a sensible man can say every thing upon any subject that comes before congress, which sensible men would wish to hear—and all beyond is useless.

BONAPARTE.

Captain Pearson, from Canton, passed St. Helena on the 31st of December, and was informed by the boarding officer of the brig Nautilus, that Bonaparte was in good health, and a new house building for his accommodation.

A letter from captain Turner, of the ship Washington, of Boston, which was lost in December last, near Yarmouth, England, says, 'two ships went on the same shoal very near him, having nearly seventy souls on board, all of whom perished. He also states that six ships were cast away within five miles of them, and that most of their crews perished.'

Lon. Paper.

LONDON, Dec. 2.

The court of Naples has concluded a treaty with that of the Brazils, for placing at the disposal of the latter, two thousand galley slaves. They are to be conveyed to Lisbon in Neapolitian ships of war, and to be transported from thence at the expense of the Portuguese government. They are to be selected from such as are condemned for a longer period than 15 years. They are to have lands allotted to them, and their wives and children are to accompany them. Those who are not condemned for life, will be permitted to return to Europe at the expiration of their sentences. After getting rid of the above number, there will still remain 5,000 galley slaves to the Neapolitian dominions.

A few days ago, a man walking along the banks of the Tay, discovered in the river, near the mouth of the Amond, a large cask, which appear to contain something of value. Elated with his good fortune, and not doubting that the cask was filled with genuine mountain dew, he proceeded to examine its quality, when, to his utter astonishment, he found the contents to consist of a moving mass of living frogs, nearly as closely packed together as a barrel of herrings. How these amphibious creatures came to be inclosed, in such numbers, we leave to naturalist to determine. It is no uncommon thing, we are aware, to discover toads in the hearts of trees, and even in the internal parts of the hardest rocks, but it must be admitted to be a very rare occurrence to find a whole colony of kindred reptiles pent up in that manner.

Beauty, Utility and Durability!

THE public are respectfully informed that the subscriber has finally concluded to remain in this city some length of time, in order to afford an ample opportunity to residents of having their houses or parts thereof, plainly painted or ornamented as may best suit their taste. The work is executed with despatch, either in oil or water colours, in exact imitation of paper hangings or according to any given design.

The superiority of this mode of decorating apartments in preference to paper hangings lies chiefly in its permanency, as it will bear cleansing by washing, and the choice of colours, patterns, landscapes, etc. etc. suitable to the size and situation of the apartment.

The expense is not more than that of papering and renewable in any manner most suitable.

TOWN OF AMERICA.

THE undersigned, owner of a large number o squares, half squares, and lots in the above own, and of about five hundred acres of land adjoining to it, proposes to sell to actual settlers, any number of lots, not exceeding one hundred; and several out lots of twenty acres each, on terms highly calculated to promote the interest of the purchasers. He is also authorized to sell on liberal terms and in small tracts, seven thousand acres of excellent land, lying about the Town and in its immediate neighborhood.

This town is situated in the fork of the Ohio and Mississippi, on the bank of the former, and on the first piece of high ground above their junction.

No person of any reflection has ever looked upon a map of North America without being struck with the mighty confluence of water which is exhibited at the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi: and the natural sentiment that a great city must grow up at that point has only been checked by the apprehension that the place was annually inundated. The apprehension was incorrect. The town scite and the back country are free from inundation, and both are now settled and are constantly increasing in population. The town has been selected for the seat of Justice for the county of Alexander in which it is situated, and both the county and circuit courts are, and will be held there. The neighboring country is well settled, not by a detached population, but by connected settlements spreading into the interior of the state of Illinois.

The mind is therefore free to expatiate upon the advantages of this situation, and the undersigned can leave it to any man of sense and candor to say whether any point upon our continent has ever presented a fairer prospect of a greater inland commercial city?

Situated on the first high ground above the confluence of the noblest streams in America—at a point from which large steam boats can at all times descend to New Orleans—with a rich back country to support it—and a numerous population now covering the adjacent country, and it is difficult to assign a reason why this town should not in a few years rank with the first in America.

Besides its water communications it may reasonably count upon the advantage of seeing pass through it the great road which will be required to facilitate the intercourse between the Upper and the Lower Mississippi. Authentic information authorizes the assertion that the country south of the Ohio is entirely practicable for a road, which can be opened across the west ends of Kentucky and Tennessee through the late Chickasaw purchase and lead to New Orleans over a direct route parallel to the course of the Mississippi.

The undersigned will be upon the spot to sell to actual settlers during the balance of the winter and spring months. He prefers to sell upon the spot, when purchasers can see with their own eyes the advantages of the situation, and therefore will be present at a time when the revival of commerce upon the river and the passing of steam boats will make it convenient for all those to visit the place and examine it for themselves who may wish to become interested in it.

He is also authorised to say that the proprietors, or a part of them, will sell at auction, on the ground, on the third Monday in April next, being the first day of the Circuit court, ONE HUNDRED LOTS; one third of the purchase money to be paid in hand, one third in six, and one in twelve months, to raise a fund for improving the place, to which the whole proceeds of the 100 lots will be applied.

To Emigrants.

HAVING associated myself with a considerable company for the purpose of settling a new place in the state of Illinois, opposite the mouth of White river and Patoka, at the foot of the Grand Rapids of the Wabash, (MOUNT CARMEL) with an intention to remove to it, as soon as practicable, I have contracted for the making and burning of 150,000 brick, which I wish put up next season into buildings, and the Bricklayer's and carpenter's work undertaken conjointly, the plaistering and whitewashing included. Lands adjoining the Town, and town lots, at cash prices, and cash, a proportion of each will be given in payment when the work is completed.

Having entered lands for the accommodation of settlers favourable to the views of the settlement, a considerable body adjoining the settlement and town lands, divided into lots of from 10 to 100 and 160 acres each may be had at the Congress prices, with the exception of the interest on the money paid, and a small advance to defray expences, &c.

I wish to employ some persons to enclose or clear lands for me, for which I will pay in lands at cash prices. I have a body of open and timbered lands, that I would lease from 5 to 10 years on advantageous terms to emigrants unable to purchase. A convenient farm to let, by an early application to the Agent may be had.

A canal for boats and water works around the Grand Rapids of the Wabash, a company is forming to commence opening next season, that will afford employment for labourers, and no inconsiderable inducement to capatilist to invest their funds in the establishment. Considerable encouragement and aid have already been tendered for that purpose by emigrants from the Eastern States. The river is open for navigation from this place to New-Orleans all the year.

Application may be made to WM. BEAUCHAMP, the Agent for the establishment, residing in Mount Carmel, or to the subscriber, residing at present in New-port. None need apply but moral characters.
